Q OK so this is looking at the video that you uploaded. And this is the boys with the GoPro. I think I might have got the volume down actually.

A So Alfie is trying to record and Leo is saying that 'ah, there is too much light here, let me close the curtain, let me close this side' because they are checking also the view in the camera.

Q Aha, I see. So they've got it on the stand.

A Yeah.

Q What were they trying to film?

A There was like this ice wall, the Arctic, there were people climbing.

Q Aha. So is it Lego that they've got there?

A Yeah.

Plays video

A He says that 'you'll see that I need to touch here, I need to go and ??? but he is not doing that'. And he look at his brother, 'brother look'.

Q So is this when they're starting to first use the GoPro?

A Yeah by themselves. Because before we are shooting some videos, but this is the one he took by himself and I didn't say anything.

Q Aha.

A And then they start, you see you are pressing, he's making click. He said, 'do you see, you can touch it here', he's showing this.

Q So they're working it out all by themselves. Did they get used to it very quickly then?

A Yeah, very quickly.

Q Oh OK.

A And they don't have any hesitation that 'can I touch it or not touch it' they try to touch everything, or repeating the same actions we are doing; and pressing very hard because the GoPro is not easy to start to record.

Q Yeah.

A So....but they are really fine. And we didn't say anything, after this they also did it several times to record.

Q Oh OK, so that was them sort of starting out on using the GoPro.

A Yes.

Q OK. And they used it quite a lot to start with I think you said?

A Yes.

Q OK that's lovely, thank you so much.
